Secretary Robert Wilkie Talks With JWV

Secretary of Veterans Affairs, Robert Wilkie, met with PNC Norman Rosenshein at JWV Headquarters on Friday, June 14, and spoke about his views on serving veterans. Secretary Wilkie and PNC Rosenshein were joined by National Executive Director Herb Rosenbleeth and Veterans Treatment Court judge, Halee Weinstein. Judge Weinstein is a long-time friend of Secretary Wilkie and joined him on a tour of the National Museum of American Jewish Military History.

Secretary Wilkie’s grandfather and father were combat veterans, his father being an Army Lieutenant Colonel. The Secretary himself is an Air Force Reserve Lieutenant Colonel. He is a graduate of the College of Naval Command and Staff, the Air Command and Staff College, the United States War College, and the Joint Forces Staff College. Secretary Wilkie’s extensive military background and experience make him uniquely qualified to lead the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Secretary Wilkie is committed to changing the culture within the VA to make it more accountable and responsive to the needs of veterans. In the past, some senior leaders have exhibited a pattern of mismanagement and lack of integrity. Issues such as falsified waiting time reports, dirty Department of Veterans Affairs Secretary Robert Wilkie came to visit the National Museum of American Jewish Military History and afterwards, spoke with JWV about what’s in store for the VA. Mission Accomplished

JWV’s Mission to Israel program is specifically designed to give non-Jewish veteran community leaders an opportunity to experience Israel first-hand so that they will see that Israel is America’s friend in the Middle East and our partner for peace in the region. Allied veterans return from Israel with a better understanding on aspects of the State of Israel’s security and so will use their new perspective to advocate on Israel’s behalf.

This year, Jack Du Teil, President of The Military Coalition and Executive Director of the United States Army Warrant Officers Association was selected to participate. His story is below.

National Commander Barry Schneider (Maj [Ret], USAF) and also included 3 other non-Jewish members of other veteran organizations.

I was fortunate enough to have been included in this adventure as a guest of this great organization. It turned out to be one of the most impactful trips I will likely ever make in my life, and I will be eternally grateful to the leadership of JWV for this incredible opportunity.

Visiting Israel only solidified my long-held belief that it is our nation’s most important, loyal ally in that entire region of the world. And the loyalty Israel demonstrates toward the USA is not just diplomatic at the leadership level.

What unbelievably frustrating times. On the one hand, we live in the freest country that has ever existed; despite its flaws. Flaws are not the surprise. After all, we are human. Freedom is. It’s not typical at all of governments to be by and for the people, yet that’s what the USA has been successful at for 240 years. But what the freedom has begotten as of late has not been the pursuit of happiness – the recurring shootings, including two at synagogues in the past year as well as 4 attempted arsons of synagogues the week I am writing this – show that something is very off. I don’t pretend to have the ultimate answers to these troubling issues, but perhaps we can take the moment to focus on three points that each of us can advance in our own lives, to better impact the world around us.

Self, mission, and action. Every individual in the armed services understands that one must have a clear identity and knowledge of our responsibilities. This leads us to focus on our mission, and most importantly, to get it done. As Jews, both as individuals and as a nation, we need to reflect likewise, and perhaps, apropos of the holiday of Shavuot, we can use G-d’s introductory line, His mission statement to the Jewish people, to do so.

Firstly, “And you shall be for Me”: This relationship with G-d might be a complicated one. But when we put aside the baggage and just take in the simple fact that G-d desires this relationship; that G-d cares about what I do and the choices I make, we have a better sense of self. This life is not just about fulfilling personal bucket lists; it’s about recognizing that G-d put us here for a purpose.

That purpose is encapsulated first in the term “kingdom of priests.” The word Kohen (priest) actually means “one who serves,” but it is typically understood as individuals and as a nation, we need to reflect on this, to express that every moment of our lives, and to express that by spreading goodness, both within and without. People around you will sense it, and see a person living a good, egoless, yet driven life, and they will be inspired to do the same.

Jewish war veterans understand these ideals more than most, having lived it in less than ideal circumstances. But now is the time for action. Tell your stories. Let’s touch people one by one, bringing one and all to recognize the preciousness of every moment of our lives, and to express that by spreading goodness, both within and without. We need to stand up strong and proud and spread the message: Live lives of goodness and purpose. That’s who we are, and what we are meant to do.

I wish you all a very joyous Shavuot!

Dr. Barry J. Schneider, National Commander

Recently National received a letter from a post asking about JWV’s effort to combat anti-Semitism. We are printing National Commander Schneider’s response for the information of all members.

Firstly, I want to thank all of you for expressing your concerns regarding JWV’s efforts to combat anti-Semitism, and for being as active as you are in the fight to put an end to said anti-Semitism. Efforts at the grassroots level are of vital importance, and we hope you will continue the fight.

To combat this senseless, seemingly eternal hatred will require a great deal of effort on all our parts, and we are always interested in hearing from you, our membership, on how you feel we can best assist you. We will always welcome constructive comments and suggestions and will always use them to help direct our programming and press releases in a manner that best suits the needs of our members.

To that end, we have regularly disseminated press releases to the public urging and demanding that certain actions be taken by U.S. elected officials to help stem the tide of anti-Semitism. To name but a few recently, JWV officially and strongly condemned the comments made by Rep. Omar, condemned the recent synagogue shootings, and urged that the Office to Monitor and Combat Anti-Semitism finally be appointed a Special Envoy by President Trump. Here at National, we will make a point to bring attention to the rampant anti-Semitism in this country to the lawmakers on Capitol Hill who have been tasked with ensuring the wellbeing of its citizens, especially those facing undue persecution.

Whenever a particularly notable anti-Semitic event occurs, the JWV tries its best to make a statement in a timely fashion, and again we welcome your suggestions for anti-Semitic events to be made aware of. For local/small/everyday incidents of anti-Semitism, we rely strongly on posts like yours to ensure that as few of these incidents slip through the cracks as possible.

Please do not hesitate to inform national headquarters of any concerns or recommendations you have going forward.

Dr. Barry J. Schneider, National Commander
RULES, REGULATIONS, PROCEDURES, none of us like them but everyone, each business and organization must follow them if they are to be successful. You, me, our families and yes JWV have specific rules we must follow in order to maintain good order and discipline. When I served on the NORAD IG team, the worst offense an organization could commit was “not following their own rules and procedures.” The same applies to each of our echelons. Posts must be in good standing in order to receive the full benefits of membership including the right to vote at national conventions. Four items are required to vote at National Convention:
1. Annual elections and submission of a Warrant for Post or Department Installation.
2. Annual financial report
3. Fidelity Bond
4. Properly submitted IRS form 990

A full explanation and description of how to file can be found on our web site under Membership—Member Resources—Post Management and Forms.

At the national level, we must start living and operating by our Constitution and By-laws, not just invoke the rules when it suits our purpose. I encourage each of you to read and study our Constitution and By-laws in order to better understand how we should operate.

Why is this so important? Many posts and departments I visited believe, true or not, that everything at convention and/or NEC is predetermined by a select few. So why bother! As this year’s convention schedule is being developed, there are many changes being proposed. There will be many new workshops designed to assist you with post operations and management. There will be important national resolutions developed to become part of our legislative agenda and assist the national commander prepare for his testimony before Congress. There will be policy changes brought forth which will influence how we operate and interact with our various echelons in the future. Most importantly, there will be several amendments offered to our By laws. These proposed changes will directly influence how we operate as we go forward. Our younger members will find increased possibilities to advance in the organization, to use their skill sets to help us become more relevant to our next generation of veterans. Our senior leadership will continue to provide the excellent guidance to our organization while developing our next generation of leaders.

“So WHAT you say!” Here is so what!

• If your echelon is not in good standing, if you do not attend convention and provide your delegate list, you abdicate your right to be part of the decision making process. This is how the status quo is changed. YOU must step up, YOU must make a commitment, YOU must make your voice and desires known.
• The future of JWV is up to YOU. Do we embrace change for a new generation? Or do we continue to operate in the same way and expect different results? YOU decide!

Come to convention! Make your voice heard!

Be part of the ongoing evolution of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States of America. We are an honorable, effective and respected organization. Do we continue to excel in our mission? Or do we, as so many other organizations have done, throw up our hands in frustration and close our doors? Do not allow our wonderful and effective organization to fail.

If not you, if not us, WHO? If not August 2019, WHEN? Let’s make this year’s convention one for the record book. Let us embrace change, let us open our doors to all, let us be transparent in all we do, let us strive for another 123 years. It is your choice!

This is my last article as your National Commander. Thank each and everyone of you for the honor and privilege to serve. To all the posts and departments I visited, thank you for all the effort you and your team put forth to help me understand your concerns. I hope I made a difference to you and your post. I wish my successor great success and accomplishment as we move forward in the coming year. I will continue to make myself available to assist you and the national organization at any time and in any capacity where I may be of service.

MESSAGE FROM THE COMMANDER

National Commander Dr. Barry J. Schneider

Contest to Design JWV’s 125th Anniversary Logo!

What is the Contest for?
The purpose of the contest is to design a logo for the 125th Anniversary of the Jewish War Veterans of the U.S.A., Inc.

Who is sponsoring the Contest?
Jewish War Veterans of the U.S.A., Inc.

Guidelines
The contest begins on July 1, 2019. Submissions will be accepted through January 31, 2020.

• Entries must be the original work of the entrant(s) and must not be derived from any third-party designs, trademarks, or copyrighted images.
• The Logo must be appropriate for a cap pin, printed materials such as posters, brochures, and for use on social media.
• Logo must look good in color and black and white. Do not use halftones and gradients unless created inside a vector graphics program.
• Logo design can be submitted in the following formats, jpeg, psd or PDF, but if you are chosen as a winner, you MUST be able to provide a high resolution vector file (EPS).

Eligibility
The contest is open to any individual 18 years or older.

How to Enter
Send your name, address, phone number and your email address along with a jpeg or PDF of your design to Christy Turner at ctturner@jwv.org.

Entry submissions must not be larger than 5MB. If yours is the winning submission, you MUST be able to provide a high-resolution vector file (EPS) of it. Multiple submissions are accepted.

Questions concerning the contest should be addressed to Christy Turner at ctturner@jwv.org or (202) 265-6280.

Judging and Winner Selection
All entries will be displayed at the 2020 February National Executive Committee (NEC) meeting and voted on by attendees. Jewish War Veterans of the U.S.A., Inc., reserves the right, in its sole discretion, to disqualify entries that do not meet these Terms and Conditions. Jewish War Veterans of the U.S.A., Inc. reserves the right to not select a winner if, in its sole discretion, no suitable entries are received.

Ownership
Contestants assign all ownership rights, including all intellectual property rights to the logo, to Jewish War Veterans of the U.S.A., Inc. Jewish War Veterans of the U.S.A., Inc. may alter, modify or revise the logo as it sees necessary to fit the organization’s needs.

Prize and Winner Notification
$500.00 will be awarded to the contest winner. Winning design to be chosen at the February NEC 2020 in Arlington, Virginia. The winner and winning design will be featured in an upcoming issue of The Jewish Veteran.

Good luck to all entrants!
The National League of Families

The National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia will be turning 50 next year. The League’s sole mission, fully supported for decades by JKV, is “to obtain the release of all prisoners, the fullest possible accounting for the missing and repatriation of all recoverable remains of those who died serving our nation during the Vietnam War.”

JKV has been and is a supporter of the National League of Families in every way we can. Our national commander almost always speaks of the POW-MIA issue during our presentation to a joint session of the House and Senate Veterans Affairs Committees each year. JKV flies the POW-MIA flag at every meeting of our national convention and at every meeting of our National Executive Committee. I personally participate at the League’s annual national meeting each June. Our departments and posts keep those who are MIA in their minds.

The National League of Families was founded in the late 1960’s. The US government’s policy was to keep a low profile on the POW/MIA issue and urged families not to publicly discuss the issue. Realizing that this approach was not working, the first POW/MIA story was published in October 1968. Because of that publicity, the families began reaching out to each other and the group began to grow. Some POW/MIA family member groups were able to meet in Paris with the North Vietnamese representatives. Also, thousands of Americans sent telegraphic inquiries concerning the prisoners and the missing, marking the beginning of the issue becoming more widely known.

In May 1970, the League’s charter and by-laws were adopted in a meeting at Constitution Hall in Washington, DC. Since that time, a seven-member board of directors has provided guidance and management of the organization. The League’s national office is in Falls Church, Virginia. It operates under the direction of the Chairman of the Board and is staffed by two full-time employees and two part-time archival document specialists. Ann Mills-Griffiths, MIA sister, is the Chairman of the Board and the principal spokesperson of the League. Ann has been the League’s mainstay since the late 1970’s. Another mainstay of the National League of Families is Richard Childress, who served in Vietnam with JKV’s National Judge Advocate, Harvey Weiner.

As of February, there were still 1,589 American missing and unaccounted for from the Vietnam War. I remember when the number was around 2,500, and I recall going to meetings where live sightings were reported. I also vividly recall when the POW/MIA flag, with the words, “You are not forgotten,” first appeared. The League’s POW/MIA flag is the only flag, other than “Old Glory,” to ever fly over the White House. On March 9, 1989, a POW/MIA flag that had previously flown over the White House was permanently installed in the U.S. Capitol Rotunda. On August 10, 1990, the 101st Congress passed U.S. Public Law 101-355, which recognized the League’s POW/MIA flag and designated it “as the symbol of our Nation’s concern and commitment to resolving as fully as possible the fates of Americans still missing and unaccounted for in Southeast Asia…” The Department of Veterans Affairs displays the POW/MIA flag 24/7. The National Vietnam Veterans, Korean War Veterans, and World War II Memorials also display the POW/MIA flag daily.

I still have a vivid recollection from my childhood of a POW/MIA case. My mother’s close friend, Mrs. Birnbaum, had a son who was a navigator on bombing missions over Germany. His name was Sanford Birnbaum. Sanford was last seen bailing out of his shot-up plane and was never seen or heard from again. After the war, Mr. and Mrs. Birnbaum traveled to civilian hospitals in Germany to see if they could find him. A missing, unaccounted for individual is a tragedy.

As long as one person remains unaccounted for, JKV will be a supporter of the League.

Homeless Veterans In America

By Dr. Marsha Schjolberg, CAPT, MSC, USN (Retired)

In the last issue of The Jewish Veteran, it was reported that suicide prevention and homelessness among veterans are the top two issues that the VA is focused on eliminating. Clearly, these issues are interrelated. We all know that despair and a sense of emptiness hastens the loss of life.

Despite the current climate of economic growth, homelessness among veterans continues to be a growing phenomenon. Although veteran disfranchisement, which plays out as “homelessness” effects every state, the sunbelt states have the largest populations of homeless veterans. It’s hard to be homeless in the winter in North Dakota; not so much on the beaches of Southern California, Florida, and the warm dry climate of Arizona.

As an example, California, which currently represents less than 4% of all enlistees, hosts 24% of all homeless veterans in the United States! According to numerous government studies previously submitted to JKV, 99% of all homeless veterans are enlisted and have served only one enlistment before separating from the service. 98% of all homeless veterans in California are NOT from California. Moreover, the face of the homeless veteran has changed. No longer are we seeing large numbers of Vietnam veterans, but rather young men and a growing number of women with children are sleeping on the streets.

Veterans’ organizations have stepped up to develop post enlistment training centers and homeless shelters. The military has stepped up and enhanced its Transitional Assistance Program (TAP) which helps military forces transition to civilian jobs, and the GI Bill has been enhanced to support both academic universities and technical training programs. Yet the problem grows. Government and support agencies have developed food banks, housing units, training programs as well as psychosocial services, but these agencies often feel like they are swimming against the tide.

Why?

An “all volunteer” force attracts a cross section of people. Patriotism with the desire to serve has always been the overriding reason to join the service, but many also join to improve their personal circumstances by leaving undesirable environments and unpleasant family circumstances. The military becomes the new “family.” Once the enlistment ends, the “new family” breaks up. Then what?

As a career Medical Service Corps officer of 28 years with a background in public health, and a doctorate in at-risk education/educational leadership, the issues seems clear. Disenfranchisement is the big nut. In the military each person is part of a team, a family, with a specifically defined role and set of expectations. We are “all in this together.” As a civilian, that same level of support often does not exist.

Moreover, homelessness not only affects that individual veteran and his/her family, but has a major impact on the VA medical system and the veterans living in the area. VAMC’s in sunbelt states are often overwhelmed with long waits to access care, where other states with fewer veterans are not as severely impacted and may have services that are underutilized.

For 25 years I have been volunteering at STAND DOWN, which is part of a national movement to help homeless veterans. Each year, several thousand homeless veterans and their families (kids under 16) gather in cities up and down the coast of California as well as other states.
level – it is heartfelt by their citizenry.

There are many reasons for this, but at its core I believe this is directly related to the compulsory military service performed by the vast majority of Israelis as they become adults. By virtue of it – unlike American youths – they are made acutely aware of the constant threats to their liberty, by belligerent neighbors on every physical border.

Israel is very good at teaching the vast history of the Jewish people to its youngsters. Moreover, of necessity, they are also made acutely aware of the relatively short – and utterly miraculous – history of the modern State of Israel, and the hard lessons associated therewith.

Of Survival and Triumph

On our first full day in Israel, we visited Independence Hall, where David Ben Gurion – first prime minister of Israel – announced the nation’s declaration of independence on 14 May 1948. We also met with officials from Tzevet, the Israeli Defense Force (IDF) veterans organization. Tzevet’s Chairman, Major General Dr. Baruch Levy, provided us with an unclassified but quite thorough national security briefing.

Later that day, we visited the Haganah Museum. Tracing its roots to as early as 1907, the Haganah was formally organized in 1921, as an underground Jewish paramilitary organization during the British Mandate of Palestine (1921–48). With an eventual strength of 30,000 fighters it became the core of the IDF, following the United Nations’ approval of the partition of Palestine and Israel’s declaration of independence.

We also visited a secret ammunition factory set up underneath a kibbutz, called Givat Hakibbutzim. Code named the “Ayalon Institute,” the factory was manned by 45 Haganah boys and girls – between the ages of 14 and 18 – who manufactured millions of rounds of ammunition. Its secret was so closely guarded that even the other members of the kibbutz had no idea of its existence.

Within 24 hours of declaring independence, Israel was attacked not only by Palestinians, but also its other Arab neighbors. Had it not been for the foresight and bravery of the Haganah (and the ammunition manufactured at the Ayalon Institute), Israel would have quickly lost its war of independence.

Our group also visited Armored Corps Memorial and Museum at the strategically crucial location of Latrun, Israel (captured from the Jordanians during the Six Day War of 1967). There, together with National Commander Schneider, I was honored to lay a wreath at the Wall of Remembrance, bearing the names of more than 5,000 Israeli casualties from Israel’s wars, dating back to 1948.

As solemn an occasion as this was, the most sobering place we visited was Yad Vashem, the Israeli Holocaust Museum. It was so engrossing and personally impactful, that our wonderful tour guides – IDF LTC (Ret) Ronit Nachman and her son Amit – had to retrieve me, so I would not miss the bus. To me, Yad Vashem is not something you can describe – it can only be experienced… and never forgotten.

So Often Miscast…

Far too many in the American media seem to portray Israelis as “occupiers,” and pillory them as unreasonable negotiators, responsible for chronic unrest with the Palestinians. These arguments are vacuous, and born of the complete ignorance (or duplicity) of those making them.

Many point to Israel’s refusal to negotiate agreements using a “land for peace” approach. Not only do the historical events of the past century belie the potential success of such concessions, but one only needs to visit places like Latrun, the West Bank, and the Golan Heights to understand why they are simply strategically impossible to make (and it shouldn’t take a military genius to realize it).

And so, ignoring the likelihood of Israel ever successfully negotiating real peace, with an entity still constitutionally committed to the extermination of its people, Israelis are often portrayed as the bad guys in the media, and even (shamefully so) by elected officials in our country!

In fact, Israelis – as a people – are not only quite passionate, but they are some of the most prolific contributors to the collective good of humankind. We visited two institutions on our trip, which underscore these points.

MEMBERSHIP CORNER

Keep an eye out for your updated JWV post or department alpha roster. They will be sent out mid-July. The alpha roster is second only to your JWV charter to be considered as the most important membership document in your possession. JWV post or department commanders should treat the alpha roster as if it was their personal financial bank statement. It must be reconciled and balanced on a routine scheduled basis. Information on this document should be treated with accuracy and sensitivity. Save and guard this document and by all means never share the information of your membership with a third party. Please respect the information provided by JWV members and treat it as sensitive information. As leaders, we owe it to our members to respect the privacy of their membership.

If used properly, the alpha roster serves as an ideal tool to be used as a post alert or notification roster. However, the data entered on the alpha roster must always be current and accurate. To assist with accuracy, it is recommended that before the start of each post or department assembly, commanders should take time to have their members review their personal information posted on the alpha roster for accuracy. This task may be delegated to your post or department Adjutant; however, the responsibility for timely accuracy lies with the post or department Commander.

In order to achieve accuracy, updating your alpha roster should be an ongoing process. When posting changes to your alpha roster, please submit your updated information to Harrison Heller at hheller@jwv.org. Once your alpha roster is updated and returned it is important to verify that all your requested changes are properly annotated to the new alpha roster. Remember to treat the alpha roster as your bank statement. Do not assume that the statement/roster is always correct.

Commanders at all echelons are required to ensure that all JWV Members stay current with their membership dues. The highest percentage of membership loss falls in the category of JWV Members failing to stay current with their membership dues. After a reasonable period of time, if a JWV member fails to submit their membership dues, they are automatically dropped from the JWV National rolls. Thus, terminating membership from all echelon levels of our organization.

There is an easy solution to prevent this manageable loss from occurring. Commanders at all echelon levels are asked to use the alpha roster as your tool, let the alpha roster work for you. Utilize the alpha roster’s suspension dates to prevent a valued JWV member from losing their membership dues lapse. After all, our membership is our most important asset in our organization, and we should treat our members accordingly.

JWV members who will be coming to this year’s JWV 124th Annual National Convention (August 18-23, 2019) in Richmond, Virginia, please plan to attend both our leadership workshop and membership committee meetings. Both scheduled events will focus on leadership and membership tools that will be helpful for all echelons. Hope to see you there!

The Square - Fundraising Game Changer

“Sorry, but I don’t have any cash on me...” and hurriedly sprinted past our table into the grocery store. Have you ever encountered that excuse while fundraising at your poppy stand for Memorial and Veterans Day? Well, we here in Atlanta sure have! At one of our past Post BOD meetings we discussed this and one of our members jokingly piped up: “I wish we could take credit cards - lol!” That’s when our own Quartermaster, Sam Benator, injected, “But we can!” We all laughed, but then asked how. Sam explained to us that there is a device known as Square®, basically a little doohickey that attaches to a cell phone that allows acceptance of all major credit cards. There is no charge for the hardware and application or contract. There is a minimal service charge of 2.75% per “swipe” and it is extremely easy to use.

We decided to try it out last Memorial Day at two of our fundraising tables. So, when we got the old line “...don’t have any cash on me...” we were able to retort with a broad smile. “We take credit cards!” That stopped many folks right in their tracks! They never heard of “basically pan handlers (though for a good cause)” accepting credit cards now. What chutzpah! But it worked. Not only did it work, we were able to engage more people about, not only about how the credit card accepting cell phones worked, but also about the work of the Jewish War Veterans. Another unforeseen upshot was that donors who used their credit cards gave much more than folks who only dropped a dollar bill into the bucket. It seemed it was psychologically much easier to give more with a credit card, then plunging down hard cold cash.

The Atlanta Post will increase its use of Square® for our November Veterans Day fundraising activities. Will your JWV Post now be able to say, “We accept credit cards!”

Become a Veterans’ Service Officer

By Michael Winnick, Director of JWV’s National Service Officers Program

I have a really great job for someone who wants to help veterans and their families. Someone who doesn’t mind fighting with the bureaucracy (and sometimes losing) but often winning. Someone who gets a sense of achievement, and while not receiving any compensation, you don’t have to reach deep into your wallet.

How often have you spoken to a vet who complains that he or she had applied to the VA for health care or for compensation for injuries they had in service and they were rejected because they filled out the wrong form?

Or after filing the correct form they had been rejected because they didn’t provide the right evidence. It happens more often than anyone cares to admit, and very often the frustrated vet stops trying.

JWV is the oldest Congressionally chartered Veteran’s Service Organization, and it is the function of our Veteran’s Service Officers (VSO’s) to help these vets to get through the bureaucracy. Not just to give them the proper applications, but to help them get help for their problems. The VA has programs for every possible problem that a veteran might encounter while confronting the problems of readjustment.

Often the veteran will call needing help with an unexplained ailment and when they relay their symptoms you realize that they really don’t have a problem with migraine headaches but they are trying to cope with PTSD or TBI and the 2 aspirin every 4 hours is not helping. How great we feel when you can refer him/her to the right doctor to treat the real problem.

Fact is when you take on the case of a vet in need they become part of your life, and along with the complaints about how slow the VA is you also get the phone call to just wish you a “happy holiday”.

Last week I got a phone call, the “caller ID” warned me that it was from a 90 year old veteran whose case had been going on for 2 years. I mumbled “I have no answer for you…” but I answered anyway, only to hear him sounding spry and alert to tell me he got the letter from the VA and they are now compensating him!

There is nothing I can think of that feels better than being able to close a file with a positive result. All I had to do was take a course and a test (If I passed it you definitely can) and become accredited to the VA from JWV.

The Square - Fundraising Game Changer

“Sorry, but I don’t have any cash on me...” and hurriedly sprinted past our table into the grocery store. Have you ever encountered that excuse while fundraising at your poppy stand for Memorial and Veterans Day? Well, we here in Atlanta sure have! At one of our past Post BOD meetings we discussed this and one of our members jokingly piped up: “I wish we could take credit cards - lol!” That’s when our own Quartermaster, Sam Benator, injected, “But we can!” We all laughed, but then asked how. Sam explained to us that there is a device known as Square®, basically a little doohickey that attaches to a cell phone that allows acceptance of all major credit cards. There is no charge for the hardware and application or contract. There is a minimal service charge of 2.75% per “swipe” and it is extremely easy to use.

We decided to try it out last Memorial Day at two of our fundraising tables. So, when we got the old line “...don’t have any cash on me...” we were able to retort with a broad smile. “We take credit cards!” That stopped many folks right in their tracks! They never heard of “basically pan handlers (though for a good cause)” accepting credit cards now. What chutzpah! But it worked. Not only did it work, we were able to engage more people about, not only about how the credit card accepting cell phones worked, but also about the work of the Jewish War Veterans. Another unforeseen upshot was that donors who used their credit cards gave much more than folks who only dropped a dollar bill into the bucket. It seemed it was psychologically much easier to give more with a credit card, then plunging down hard cold cash.

The Atlanta Post will increase its use of Square® for our November Veterans Day fundraising activities. Will your JWV Post now be able to say, “We accept credit cards!”

Become a Veterans’ Service Officer

By Michael Winnick, Director of JWV’s National Service Officers Program

I have a really great job for someone who wants to help veterans and their families. Someone who doesn’t mind fighting with the bureaucracy (and sometimes losing) but often winning. Someone who gets a sense of achievement, and while not receiving any compensation, you don’t have to reach deep into your wallet.

How often have you spoken to a vet who complains that he or she had applied to the VA for health care or for compensation for injuries they had in service and they were rejected because they filled out the wrong form?

Or after filing the correct form they had been rejected because they didn’t provide the right evidence. It happens more often than anyone cares to admit, and very often the frustrated vet stops trying.

JWV is the oldest Congressionally chartered Veteran’s Service Organization, and it is the function of our Veteran’s Service Officers (VSO’s) to help these vets to get through the bureaucracy. Not just to give them the proper applications, but to help them get help for their problems. The VA has programs for every possible problem that a veteran might encounter while confronting the problems of readjustment.
1. What drove you to join the military? The examples of service from my family and a desire to be part of something bigger than myself. Both my grandfathers served in the Army. My father’s dad, Sam Scheinberg, was a combat engineer in WW2 and helped to liberate France and concentration camps in France and Germany. Both of my parents served in a different way as public educators. I joined the Army through West Point and my younger brother, Joshua, joined the Air Force shortly after 9/11.

2. How did you get introduced to JWV? I knew of JWV through my grandfather, but really got to know the organization and members as a cadet at West Point. JWV truly helped me get through West Point by building a community at the Jewish Chapel on Post. Members, many who served in WW2, Korea, and Vietnam would sponsor our weekly Shabbat dinners, Sunday bagels, and would always provide mentorship as a group of folks who have been through what we were facing. My wife, Natasha, and I were later married at the West Point Jewish Chapel.

3. What was your most memorable Jewish experience while serving? Flying from Haswah, Iraq, to Baghdad to meet up with the only Jewish chaplain in Iraq and helping to put on a Passover Seder for Jewish soldiers across theatre. The best part was seeing Jewish West Point graduates who I knew as cadets coming together from bases and outposts all over Iraq.

4. Is there a piece of legislation coming before Congress that you find that will best serve our veterans? One of the highlights of my career in service is working for Senator Manchin on Veterans legislation. Senator Manchin has been on the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee since he was first elected and is very active on veterans issues as part of his “Warriors Caucus.”

5. What is your favorite movie and does it relate with your experience in the military? There Will Be Blood. I don’t think it relates to my military service, it’s just an awesome movie.

6. Who is your favorite superhero and why? It’s always been Superman for me. When I was in high school, I won 7 gold medals in the Maccabaeus Games as a sprinter on the track & field team. I wore a Superman shirt after every event and folks started calling me “The Fastest Jew in America”.

7. What is your favorite traditional Jewish food? Everything bagel, veggie cream cheese, and lox with a side of creamed herring.
Welcome to JWV’s 124th Annual National Convention!

Join us in beautiful and historic Richmond, Virginia, for our 124th Annual National Convention! Our convention brings together JWV members from around the country to network, discuss programs, conduct organizational business, and plan for JWV’s future.

Here you will learn more about the issues facing our veteran and military community. Members will craft the resolutions that will be the core of our legislative priorities.

This year there will be sessions on Post Leadership, how to run successful fundraising campaigns, using social media effectively, and how to become an accredited Veteran Service Officer. Attendees will come away from these sessions with useful information that they can bring home and effectively implement at their posts and departments.

► Post Leadership Seminar
Learn what skills and resources are needed for managing and growing your Post. Topics will include a “high altitude” overview of the roles and responsibilities of National, Department and Post; recruiting and retention strategies; boosting visibility within your community; online and social media; and how to hold successful meetings. We will also present highlights of the Post Leadership Guide.

► How to Fundraise Successfully
Need any tips on how to run a successful fundraiser? Looking to start a new fundraising campaign? Come learn the ins and outs of new and innovative fundraising strategies. With these new strategies, your post can run new and successful fundraisers in your community. Integrating new technology and targeted messaging with current efforts can only improve current efforts.

► Website and Social Media Training
This training session on social media (Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram) will cover who the target audiences are, what social media sites are most suitable, identifying where your post’s weaknesses are, when are the best times to promote, and why this class is being given. Learning how to target messages can help you grow programs and draw attention to your cause. Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram are excellent tools to utilize to grow your post and programs. Social media is the best free publicity a post can have.

► Becoming a Veterans’ Service Officer
In this session, you will learn what it takes to become accredited as a National Service Officer, and what is involved to remain a service officer. Will include Q+A’s.

► JWV & JWVA Joint Convention Opening
Welcome to beautiful and historic, Richmond, Virginia, for our 124th Annual National Convention.

Speaker: Representative from the Department of Veterans’ Affairs.

► National Executive Committee (NEC) Meeting
The National Executive Committee is responsible for the business of running JWV. All members are welcome to attend the meeting, but only NEC members can vote on issues brought before the body.

► Constitution & Bylaws Committee Meeting
The constitution of an organization contains the fundamental principles which govern its operation. The bylaws establish the specific rules of guidance by which the group is to function. This meeting is held only when there are proposed changes to either the constitution or bylaws.

► Resolutions Committee Meetings
The Resolution Committee meeting is where our members come to discuss and debate JWV’s policy-making proposals that inform JWV’s position on an issue or topic. Resolutions are the backbone of our our Legislative Priorities presented before Congress.

► Membership Committee Meeting
Learn how to grow and maintain your Post! Learn new recruiting tactics and how to retain your members. At this meeting you will get tips from various JWV echelons that have displayed successful positive gains in their strength maintenance. Listen, learn and share. Hope to see you there!

Harvey Weiner has been JWV’s National Judge Advocate since 2013. He previously served on the National Executive Committee, as Vice Chairman of the Vietnam Veterans Committee, and as Vice President of the National Court. He is past Commander of the Massachusetts Department and past Post Commander of the Newton-Brookline Post #211. He is a life member of the JWV, the Vietnam Veterans of America, and the Disabled American Veterans. He is a life member of and General Counsel to the National Museum of American Jewish Military History.

Harvey is a Vietnam War combat veteran, who, as an Army Captain, was an intelligence advisor to the Vietnamese. His combat experience includes small raids, night ambushes, mortar and rocket attacks, sniper fire and land mines. He was the recipient of the Bronze Star (M) among other decorations. After the war, he returned to Ft. Dix, N.J., where he defended 38 courts martial and was a Chief Investigating Officer.

Harvey is a U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs Accredited Attorney and is admitted to both the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces and the U.S. Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims. He has been trained and certified as a veterans’ mediator and has assisted in the training of other veterans’ mediators.

Harvey is active in the Jewish community. He is past president of Temple Beth Avodah in Newton and was on its Executive Board for 25 years. He has been the JWV representative on the Greater Boston Jewish Community Relations Council for 13 years.

Harvey has practiced civil litigation in Boston at Peabody & Arnold for over 47 years. He is president of the Massachusetts Bar Foundation and the Federal Bar Association (Mass. Chapter) and past president of the Boston Inn of Court and the Massachusetts Municipal Lawyers Association.

Harvey has been married for over 51 years to Linda, who was a Waiting Wife, has two adult children, one granddog, and lives in Newton, Massachusetts.

Meetings and events!

JWV IN THE COMMUNITY

PNP Elaine Bernstein and PNC Michael Berman represented the National Ladies Auxiliary of the JWV and the Jewish War Veterans of the USA as they participated in the memorial ceremony at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Wall in Washington, DC, on Memorial Day.

Approximately 60 friends and members of the local community and the JCC gathered for JWV Post 692’s 3rd Annual Memorial Day Program. Lt Colonel Sheldon Goldberg, USAF (Ret) and Docent at the National Museum of American Jewish Military History, and Post 692 Adjutant, acted as Master of Ceremonies and introduced retired Colonel Erwin Burtnick, Commander, JWV Department of Maryland, the keynote speaker. Other VIP’s who attended the program and addressed the audience were Rabbi Moishe Kavka who gave the invocation, retired Navy Captain, Rabbi Irving Elson, Chairman, Jewish Welfare Board’s Chaplain’s Council, who gave the benediction, and Mr. Michael Feinstein, Bender JCC CEO.

Members of JWV Post 41-NY along with 5 Boy Scouts from Temple Beth El participated in the Memorial Day parade in downtown Rochester, NY. Four post members marched, and two Boy Scouts carried the national and post colors. The other Scouts and post members were in nearby vehicles.

Albany Post 105-NY presented Rev. Charlene Robbins (center) with this year’s Four Chaplains Brotherhood Award. Charlene is the epitome of chaplaincy with presence, supporting countless area organizations and events. To her left is JWV Capital District Council Commander Richard Goldenberg, and on her right is Post 105 Commander Fred Altman.

Members of St. Louis Jewish War Veterans Post 644 held their annual picnic at Stacy Park on June 2, 2019. The picnic is one of the organizations’ events, which include observances of Memorial Day and Veterans’ Day. Jewish veterans and patrons of all branches of military service, whether they served in wartime or peacetime, are encouraged to join Post 644. All veterans are encouraged to join us for bagels and camaraderie. They meet monthly at the Jewish Federation Building the 3rd Sunday of each month. For more information contact: Ed Cohen 636-536-3818 or Ellis Frohman 636-519-7512.

JWV Post 157 members and the JWV Dept. of MA Commander served as Color Guard for the New England Revolution-Chelsea Football Club soccer match on May 15. The match served to highlight the ongoing rise of hate crimes around the world, using sports to bring attention to these issues and bringing people together to tackle prejudice. From left: Samuel Holland, Jeff Wetztenkorn, Fred Glass, Paul Weinbaum and Arnold Pinsky.

JWV IN THE COMMUNITY

JW North Shore Post 220-MA members James Norcross and Donna Lehman coordinated the 2019 JWV Post Flagging Mission for our departed veterans. James, the post’s newest member, volunteered to co-chair this year’s Post Flagging Mission. The Post flagged in four local communities, totaling over 1,000 flags. Special thanks go to the community partners that assisted in the flagging mission: Boy Scout Troop 88, Jewish War Veterans Ladies Auxiliary (JWVA), The Lappin Foundation/Gary Colton, and members from Temple Ner Tamid. With their continued support, the post’s flagging mission was completed prior to the 2019 Memorial Day weekend. Shown: Community partners and Post 220 member, James Norcross (far right).

COL Elizabeth Casely (right), an honorary Post 76-NJ member, invited Commander Kronick to her promotion ceremony at the Pentagon. COL Casely has been involved with the post for over 20 years. Her mother visited Assemblyman Kronick’s legislative office when Elizabeth was young to express her daughter’s interest in attending West Point. Kronick said, “After the initial meeting I became better acquainted with her family and observed Elizabeth’s determination to serve. I then wrote a letter of support.” After serving in Germany, Korea and Iraq, Elizabeth was invited to address Post 76-NJ. COL Casely expects to graduate from the War College shortly.

Erase the Hate: Don’t Let the Ink Define You

By Harrison Heller

HBO has a fairly new documentary series titled VICE. Each hour-long episode features 1 or 2 stories that do not get much coverage in the mainstream news. Their most notable episode was their report on the ‘Unite the Right’ march in Charlottesville, VA. This event brought America’s ugly side back to the surface with torch carrying white supremacists and neo-Nazis chanting “Blood and soil,” “white lives matter,” and “lews will not replace us,” as well as the reemergence of David Duke and the Ku Klux Klan.

Since the events in Charlottesville, there have been two high-profile anti-Semitic attacks, the attack at the Tree of Life Synagogue in Pittsburgh, PA and the attack at the Chabad in Poway, CA. Two African American churches were burned down outside a Kroger grocery store after the shooter attempted to get into an African American church in Louisville, KY. In a ten-day span, three African American churches were burned down in Louisiana. According to the Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC), 40 people died at the hands of “right-wingers” in 2018, compared to 17 in 2017. As of 2018, the SPLC has tracked a record high 1,020 hate groups operating in the United States. This is the fourth straight year with a 30% increase.

There are some people in these groups who experience a change of heart and realize that hate leads you down an even darker path, and they want to escape. TM Garret, a former skinhead and Klansman, said, “Hate is a full-time job. 24/7 paranoia.” Some of these people have literally worn their hate and ideology on their sleeves and bare them on their hearts. Romey Muns, a former member of the Aryan Brotherhood, said, “Seeing all the hate and ideology on their sleeves and bare them on their hearts makes my blood boil.”

In middle school, TM was asked to join a German Ku Klux Klan group, but it was not what he expected. The internet became a huge recruiting tool for white supremacist groups and allowed them to communicate with ease. As TM’s doubts about the group grew, he was encouraged by a klavern in Mississippi to open a new KKK group in Germany.

In 2000, he flew to Mississippi and was inducted at a cross-burning ceremony. He flew back home as the Grand Dragon for the Realm of Germany and Imperial Representative for Europe. TM was convinced that, “it was not about hate, it was about love for our own race. But at the end, it was about hate.”

As we spoke about the ideology of the German KKK, TM told me that the German far-right was more Pagan, a person “can’t be anti-Semitic and Christian at the same time. Jesus was Jewish.” He told me that the blood drop in the middle of the KKK emblem represented the blood of Jesus Christ, and this whole concept confused him. For TM, the identity part became much more important in his new group and the racism became far less important. This caused a lot of infighting within the new organization, between TM and other members.

In the Fall of 2002 the police and government began to knock on the doors of members, and informed them they were being investigated. TM contacted a trusted member and told him that he was resigning and that he wanted to disconnect. TM and his family moved about 100 miles away, where they rented a place owned by a Turkish Muslim landlord.

After settling in, TM was asked by the landlord if he could help him with some IT work. TM was broke and looking for work, so he accepted the offer. Several months prior, he says that he would have never taken the job. Since the job was taking longer than expected, the landlord made some Turkish tea and pancakes. TM refused at first because maybe he touched the food. He later thought that it could be rude in the Turkish culture to refuse the food. He believed that if he refused, that the landlord would turn into a Muslim terrorist or white supremacist, and he wanted to escape. TM reached out to TM and Sickside Tattoos 30% are hate tattoo cover-ups. Upon viewing this video, I reached out to TM and Sickside Tattoos about wanting to learn more about this program.

One of JWV’s cornerstones is to combat anti-Semitism and hate, and this is a real-life example of that and the ultimate change of heart, as well as a true second chance. I heard back from TM almost instantaneously. He and I arranged a night where we could talk about his experience and learn more about the “Erase the Hate” campaign. Everything in TM’s life was a lead-up to this campaign and prepared him to become the leader and champion for those wanting to escape the movement.

The way most people get involved with hate/extremist groups is falling into a cycle of validating beliefs, rooted in fear and distrust, and finding likeminded people. This is no different than TM’s story. I wanted to learn more about the “Erase the Hate” campaign, and in order to learn that, I had to know the inspiration, the spark that lit the fire and became a beacon of hope to escape.

During our conversation, TM told me the story of how he got involved in the white supremacist movement and how he rose through the ranks. TM was born and raised in small, conservative town in southern Germany of approximately 500 people. As he was growing up he described himself as a bit of a loner and was constantly bullied. He eventually found a way to get the attention he so craved, and that was through telling racist and anti-Semitic jokes with a group of several kids. TM got a sense of gratification, so he kept on telling jokes. Through the attention that the jokes gave him, he became known as the “Nazi Kid.” He hated the nickname and hated the label, but the bullying suddenly stopped.

In middle school he was handed a tape from a friend that had hard rock music. The music featured lyrics and themes that were very familiar to TM. Themes of being misunderstood, being Nazis “but they weren’t,” and nationalism. With each new tape he received, the music became harder, and messages became more of white supremacy and hate. At the same time, he started taking on the image of a skinhead. TM became self-radicalized through the music and was indoctrinated by age 15. In 1997 he formed a band that featured music about pride, saving the country, saving the white race, and wanting to ban immigrants and “kick out all the foreigners.” The only black person he knew at the time was an African American girl, whose father was an American serviceman stationed in Germany. That was when he heard the N-word the very first time – out of the mouth of the same kid who gave TM the cassette tape.

In the late 1990’s TM was asked to join a German Ku Klux Klan group, but it was not what he had expected. The internet became a huge recruiting tool for white supremacist groups and allowed them to communicate with ease. As TM’s doubts about the group grew, he was encouraged by a klavern in Mississippi to open a new KKK group in Germany.

Since the events in Charlottesville, there have been two high-profile anti-Semitic attacks, the attack at the Tree of Life Synagogue in Pittsburgh, PA and the attack at the Chabad in Poway, CA. Two African American churches were burned down outside a Kroger grocery store after the shooter attempted to get into an African American church in Louisville, KY. In a ten-day span, three African American churches were burned down in Louisiana. According to the Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC), 40 people died at the hands of “right-wingers” in 2018, compared to 17 in 2017. As of 2018, the SPLC has tracked a record high 1,020 hate groups operating in the United States. This is the fourth straight year with a 30% increase.

There are some people in these groups who experience a change of heart and realize that hate leads you down an even darker path, and they want to escape. TM Garret, a former skinhead and Klansman, said, “Hate is a full-time job. 24/7 paranoia.” Some of these people have literally worn their hate and ideology on their sleeves and bare them on their hearts. Romey Muns, a former member of the Aryan Brotherhood, said, “Seeing all the hate tattoos I have on me...it’s embarrassing.”

In early May, I came across a Youtube video from Vice entitled Covering Up Racist Tattoos: Erasing the Hate. The video featured the story of a campaign called “Erase the Hate” that provides free tattoo cover-ups for former gang members and hate/extremist group members. The program was started by TM Garret in August 2017 at Sickside Tattoos in Horn Lake, MS. Since the program started, they have expanded to several studios in 6 states and have given cover-ups to 100-150 people. Approximately 70% are gang tattoo covers and 30% are hate tattoo covers. Upon viewing this video, I reached out to TM and Sickside Tattoos about wanting to learn more about this program.

something horrible would happen. So, he took a bite and a cup of tea. This went on for months and months. TM later decided to not take the money, he wanted to help and be a good neighbor.

One day, the landlord invited TM over for dinner with his family. It was baked chicken, oven fries, and fish soup. TM laughed and told me that he hates fish soup. The fish soup was put in front of him, and he paused. He was afraid to reject the food, as judgmental thoughts raced through his mind. He built up the courage and said to his landlord, “I can’t eat it. I don’t like fish soup.” The landlord’s wife smiled, took it away, and brought him some chicken. TM was amazed and tried to comprehend what happened. “What had just happened here? I was sitting here so judgmental expecting the bad stereotypical reaction that I was taught, and it did not happen.”

In 2012, TM was 10 years removed from the white supremacist movement and he had moved to Memphis, TN. There he opened a music studio. In 2016, TM became involved in civil and human rights. It was the time when police brutality hit the media and Black Lives Matter was launched. TM realized that there was still a gap between the black and white communities, and everybody was now protesting. After the protests, everybody would go home and think they’ve done enough. He did not agree and thought more must be done to bridge “gaps that were created by racism, ignorance, and hate.” As part of these initiatives, TM started the non-profit C.H.A.N.G.E (Care, Hope, Awareness, Need, Give, Education), along with Pastor Ray Johnson, a former member of the Bloods street gang.

In 2017, TM paired-up with Sickside Tattoo Studio shop manager, Drew Darby, and owner, Jack Flores, to form Erase the Hate. TM once had a strong desire to remove the tattoos that reminded him of his past, and the people at Sickside knew other people in TM’s position. They now work together to combat hate and help those who are trying to erase their past by providing gang and racist tattoo cover-ups for free.

On May 3, 2018, TM was featured in a short film by Chapman University titled, Rewired. The film tells this same story of TM’s journey in the white supremacist movement. He was invited to the screening at the university after which he visited the Museum of Tolerance in Los Angeles. After visiting a full-size replica of a gas chamber from a Nazi concentration camp, he decided he wanted to interact more with the Jewish community. He soon became involved with the Simon Wiesenthal Center, where he continues to speak. After the largest anti-Semitic attack in United States history at the Tree of Life Synagogue, in Pittsburgh, PA, this cemented his further involvement with the Jewish community. Later this year, TM will be speaking at Alpha Epsilon Pi’s 106th Convention in Alexandria, VA, during a pre-convention session on the Tikun Olam track. He has also spoken at multiple Jewish day schools.

At the end of our conversation, TM told me his birth name, Achim. A former skinhead and Klansman was born with a Hebrew name. This is his birth name, Achim. A former skinhead and Klansman was born with a Hebrew name. A former skinhead and Klansman was born with a Hebrew name. A former skinhead and Klansman was born with a Hebrew name. Secretary Wilkie has brought many military people to the VA. His Chief of Staff is a former Air Force Colonel. He appointed a Senior Enlisted Advisor, which the VA has not had since the days of Omar Bradley. These military personnel will help fix the culture at the VA. Leadership will improve.

The newly passed VA Mission Act was the next issue to be discussed. The Mission Act improves the ability of the VA to provide the healthcare veterans need, when and where they need it. It gives veterans the option to seek care in their communities. “It will also put veterans at the center of their care, and offer options, including expanded tele-help and urgent care, so they can find the balance in the system that’s right for them,” said Secretary Wilkie. The Secretary pointed out that there has been a decline in the number of veterans asking to go outside of the VA for their treatment.

Secretary Wilkie is committed to establishing an electronic medical record for all veterans. He sees the creation of a combined DoD/VA medical records as one of his major goals. This record would be available at all physicians appointments.

The Secretary said the greatest problem affecting veterans are mental health issues. Poor mental health is attributable to suicide and addiction. Vietnam veterans are the largest contingent of those needing mental health care. We need a real deep national conversation on mental health.

Right now, veteran suicides occur at the rate of over 20 deaths a day. Secretary Wilkie said his approach is to take the stigma away from getting needed care for mental health issues. Military personnel are often reluctant to seek this type of care for fear that doing so will negatively impact their military career.

Another issue that affects military and veterans is loneliness. Technology and social media give people the illusion of social connectivity, but many people report feelings of isolation. People today often view other people as text messages, not as people. Military personnel lack sufficient contact with others, often because they have become used to texting. Face to face communication, or at least speaking directly to someone would ease some of the feelings of loneliness.

Secretary Wilkie said, “We have lost the ability to be civil.” In the past, opposing politicians would meet informally with each other and have a civilized, even friendly conversation, about a divisive issue. Genuine friendships existed between those on opposite sides of an issue. Politicians could talk with each other, but not today.

“I just presented to the Congress a $220 billion budget,” said the Secretary. That is the largest budget in the history of the Department. It will enable the VA to provide many of the services that veterans need.

JWV states that Secretary Wilkie demonstrate the leadership skills needed to accomplish the VA’s important agenda. We enjoyed his visit to our headquarters and we look forward to working with the Secretary and his staff.

Caretakers of Our Collective History

As a titbit of autobiographical data, I happen to be a Christian. But my grandfather was raised in an Orthodox Jewish family, and I fell in love with my best friend and Jewish wife of 31 years.

From this perspective, I was awestricken by the degree to which Israelis have become the archaeologists, caretakers, and guardians of so much of our collective history. Regardless of faith association they regard the excavation, preservation and protection of historical sites and artifacts in this land – so rich with ancient artifacts – as a national imperative.

Because of this, in Capernaum I was able to stand in the ruins of a temple where Jesus preached, and view the foundation of Saint Peter’s house. I visited Masada and viewed the excavated and partially reconstructed palace fortress, built by King Herod, where hundreds of Jews grimly chose suicide over falling into Roman hands. And that afternoon, I floated in the Dead Sea.

In Jerusalem, I prayed at the Western Wall. I touched the spot where Jesus lay in his manger (in the Church of the Nativity), walked the stations of the cross, and touched the slab on which his crucified body was anointed at the Church of the Holy Sepulcher. At Mount Zion, we visited King David’s Tomb and the Room of the Last Supper. These are just a few of the places we visited. But were it not for Israel’s commitment to the discovery and preservation of history – and its partnership with the Vatican and numerous other religious, national organizations and institutions – this would not be possible. Many sites would still be buried.

Conclusions

At the beginning of this article I stated my belief in the importance of Israel as a key ally of the United States. Visiting the country, and interacting with its people only strengthened this belief. But I came away with a few more impressions.

By and large, the Israeli people are far more pro-American than they are portrayed in our country. This is not because they need America’s help to survive – to the contrary, they have been doing a spectacular job of this on their own, and indeed thriving.

The Israelis appreciate the alliance they have with us, for the same reasons we should reciprocate these feelings. The value in this alliance goes well beyond the obvious strategic, military rationale. Israel’s value as a partner is evident on many fronts, to include economics, science, agricultural development, and culture.

Finally, I would like to once again thank JWV for this incredible opportunity. I would also like to thank each and every one of the wonderful people in our group, for being part of the “trip of a lifetime.”

More than 75,000 volunteers give 11 million hours a year in service to America’s veterans. It is impossible to calculate the amount of caring, sharing and impact VA volunteers have on veterans, their families, caregivers and survivors. For Army veteran Bill Browning, spending time inside a VA hospital as a patient put him on the path to becoming the Chief of Voluntary Service at the Detroit VA Medical Center.

Fred Piess and Bill Browning are Veterans that continue to serve through the VA Voluntary Service program.

Bill laughs and says, “This may date me, in 1987, I found myself in a VA hospital bed. I was nervous and scared, facing a diagnosis that I had no information or clue about, type 1 diabetes. A VA volunteer visited with me and offered me assistance. Something as simple as a craft kit to keep me occupied as I recovered gave me hope. I finished the craft kit and hung the final product in my office.”

Demonstrating how powerful and moving one patient experience and volunteer interaction can be, Bill came to work for VA nine years after his hospital stay. Bill says, “My time spent in the military was rewarding, I never thought I’d come back to VA, but the care I received there was such a motivation and it really changed my life, saved my life.”

Fred Piess is one of the Red Coat Ambassadors at the Detroit VA. Fred, an Air Force Veteran, has 32 years experience as a Michigan state social worker, with 27 of those years spent working with children and protective services. Fred is also a member and representative of the Jewish War Veterans service organization. Fred’s post commander suggested he volunteer at the VA in 2016 and he’s been a part of the team ever since.

Fred’s social work experience, he is a natural for the Red Coat Ambassador position. “Working with people, solving problems and getting them to the right place for whatever they need is my job,” says Fred.

Earlier this week, Fred was coming out of the volunteer office near a parking structure, where he saw a veteran leaning heavy on his cane and out of breath. Fred grabbed a wheelchair and got him to where he needed to go. What makes Fred feel great about his volunteer service is, “knowing that if he had to walk he never would have made it. Those are the moments that matter.”

Fred is developing a facility map of services for Veterans and staff to help them navigate the hospital and, like all other Detroit Red Coats, serves as a Patient Advocate Liaison to help with on-the-spot service recovery. Fred says, “Sometimes you listen to a person, the problem isn’t so much VA, it’s the understanding of the benefits, services and programs.”

Why would you want to be a VA Volunteer? One of the most important benefits of volunteering is the opportunity to explore and fulfill your passions. For many VA volunteers, that passion is serving veterans. For others, their “why” is the chance to explore a new career field. For some, they like feeling like they are investing in an activity that is making a difference in their community.

“What brought me to VA’s Voluntary Service was my experience as a VA patient and having that memory of spending my time in the hospital and a volunteer visiting me, offering help. They [volunteers] gave me hope to press forward and one day join them as a team,” says Bill Browning.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

VIETNAM VETERANS COMMITTEE
Bob Jacobs & Art Kaplan, Co-Chairmen
Co-Chairman Art Kaplan (TALO) and I are looking forward to the National Convention in Richmond. Our project of gathering the military stories of those who served during the Vietnam Era (1959-1975) has reached a major turning point. We never expected to get the stories of all who served but we did hope to get a representative sampling; and that we have done. Jerry Alperstein (NY) and a sub-committee of volunteer proofreaders have completed their work on the 65 or so stories gathered so far, and plans are moving ahead to publish them on disc for sale with profits going to the NMAJMH. The stories include people who served in most, if not all, branches as well as those who served in Vietnam and other parts of the world. We’ll hear more on this from Jerry at the convention.

Wisconsin Commander Kim Queen will be making a visual presentation at the convention of a proposed Vietnam Veterans Committee Facebook page. Our committee “Vietnam Veterans Night Out” event will actually be in the hotel this year on Wednesday, August 21st. We are looking forward to guests from both the local VVA Chapter 78 and possibly the Virginia VVA State Council President. It is best to make your reservations ahead of time. Dinner is $45 per person (including tax & tip) or $55 cash if paid at the convention. Contact Jerry Alperstein at 212-477-3131. If you wait until getting to the hotel to register, we cannot guarantee seating or choice of meals.

Hopefully, new information about the possible Vietnam exhibit in the NMAJMH will be available to present at the meeting. If you have any ideas for a future project for the committee, either bring it with you to Richmond or send it to me (Bob).

We are also looking into the possibility of having a phone link for the meeting so that those who cannot get to Richmond can participate in the committee meeting. The staff at National are seeing if there is a way that those who cannot get to Richmond can participate in the committee meeting. The staff at National are seeing what they can do to make this happen.

See you all in Richmond.

VAVS
Ken Ashworth, Chairman
Last fiscal year (2018), JWV’s Veteran Administration Volunteer Service (VAVS) hours totaled over 20,000. This represents the efforts of JWV Members throughout all 200+ JWV Posts. We volunteered at over 70 VA Care and Medical Facilities. Departments of Florida, California and TALO, (Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma) had the highest donated hours of JWV’s 20+ Departments participating.

Volunteers assisted with the following tasks: working at various facilities to help keep them operating smoothly; working information desks; transporting patients to and from their vehicles; transporting veterans through the halls of the hospitals; visiting patients, running Bingo games; supporting youth summer programs; serving snacks to patients and staff; sponsoring families; serving daily popcorn snacks; and so forth.

If you are a volunteer for the VA, thank you for all that you do. If you would like to get involved, please contact your post or your local VA Center. If you have any questions, feel free to send me an email at ken.smash64@gmail.com.

WOMEN IN THE MILITARY COMMITTEE
Sheila Berg, Chairman
Women are the fastest growing demographic in the military. The VA Women’s Health Services have tripled since 2000 to over 500,000 today. Outreach from the VA must be enhanced to confirm acceptance and service. Without the passage of the Deborah Sampson Act there is no continuity of treatment and service. Gaps in gender specific needs without legislative enforcement will only be lip-service.

The Deborah Sampson Act (S. 514) is a comprehensive bill to address the needs of women veterans, from primarycare, maternity care, training, readjustment, related services and appropriate staffing for the VA. This legislation addresses the issues women veterans now face, whether they are in-service and or a veteran.

Individual concerns are proper fitting flight suits, flak jackets and helmets. Women serve in positions formerly reserved for males, and there is a need for gender specific equipment and clothing. Presently, Rep. Chris Pappas (D-NH), and Rep. Elise Stefanik (R-NY), have introduced bipartisan legislation to ensure female veterans have access to prosthetic items. According to Rep. Pappas, “It is incumbent upon us to ensure that women who have answered the call to service have access to the same quality care as their male counterparts.” According to Rep. Stefanik the bill “Paves for further research into how to best develop the incredible technology to fit women’s bodies.”

The VA has established the Women’s Veterans Call Center staffed by representatives who can answer general questions about benefits, eligibility, and services specifically for women veterans. For more information, contact the Women Veterans Call Center at (855) 829-6636.

Recently, JWV member Debra Stern was interviewed on television about her military service during WWII. Debra served as a truck driver, transporting troops, ammunition, and commanders.

STAMP PROGRAM
Michael Corbett, Chairman
As a result of my initial work on the Stamp program, we had a tremendous response and received many stamps. But that excitement has waned in the past 3 weeks. I actually have 8 full boxes of stamps ready to go out to the VAMCs - each box weighs within an ounce or 2 of 4 pounds (with the box alone weighing almost a half pound) The approximately 3.5 pounds of stamps in each box - about 7,500 stamps; which will give a dozen veterans several hours of dexterity exercise and/or diversion from the tedium of being a patient. I also have about another 4 boxes worth of stamps to sort, trim, and fill the USPO “Priority Mail” boxes. Each box costs between $13.50 and about $15.00 to mail.

When people send stamps, most tear off the corner of the envelope with the stamp, and the back of the envelope remains attached - this extra paper unnecessarily contributes to the weight of the box. Some people cut the envelope in half and send the stamp half to me. I need to trim these further. As you can tell, there is some amount of work needed for this program.

As a test, I mailed letters to synagogues in 4 Florida counties and I am preparing to contact the remainder over the next 2 months. The letters consumed $11.00 in postage and about $3.00 in envelopes; add to that about 24 hours of hard labor in signing and stuffing them in envelopes - you get the idea! There is both a monetary cost and a manpower cost involved for all this start-up, but we expect the cost to level-off to a more reasonable amount after the first year. The Department of Florida is absorbing all these costs.

In addition to the 55 Fisher Houses I contacted, I also sent letters to 68 VA hospitals and domiciliary care facilities around the country. I introduced the program and let them know we are prepared to provide stamps over the long-haul. These letters went out in April and I’ve received only a single response - from New Mexico; perhaps they thought it was a “phishing” expedition. That’s precisely why we need the departments and posts on top of this - to meet with Rehabilitation Therapists and “sell” the program as beneficial for their purposes; and, with Recreation Specialists to explain that this program can fill the void of a hospitalized veteran’s idle time. By the end of this month I shall contact these VA facilities via e-mail and re-introduce the program and try, again to entice them to request stamps.

To summarize, everyone exclaimed their love and support of the program but they’ve all gone on Summer break. I’m hopeful that they are spending some of the time communicating the need with their other organizations, businesses, friends and relatives, because this is the type of program that requires persistent attention to be successful. Meanwhile, our den is full of the boxes and, bags of stamps needing to be sorted and trimmed; and, our dining room table is overflowing with the administrivia of the project - envelopes, address labels, packing tape for the boxes, Shabbos candles...oh, that’s not part of the program!

My excitement will come when we hear from the VA facilities of their enthusiasm for the program after they consume the first box.

Please feel free to share this with everyone there because, when we get to Richmond, there will be a test.
MEMORIALS OF JEWISH INTEREST

By Editor Iris Goldwasser, PNP

Arlington National Cemetery is located on what was once the Arlington plantation. The plantation was confiscated from its owner, Mary Ann Curtis Lee, wife of General Robert E. Lee, during the Civil War, due to unpaid taxes. Admittedly, some historians suggest this was also to punish Lee for leading Confederate forces.

The first burials took place during the midst of the Civil War in 1864. Among them were ten Jewish soldiers, all of whom fought for the Union. Today, more than 5,400 Jews are among the over 300,000 buried in Arlington.

In 1898, the USS Maine was sent to Cuba to protect U.S. interests. However, there was an explosion and the ship sank in Havana harbor, killing most of the men aboard, including 15 Jewish sailors. This incident triggered a war between the U.S. and Spain. It is estimated that 5,000 Jews served in the Spanish-American War. A memorial was erected in 1915 in memory of the USS Maine at Arlington Cemetery. After the Spanish-American War in 1898, Congress designated part of Section 16 for Confederate soldiers. Sergeant Moses Ezekiel, son of a prominent Sephardic Jewish family from Virginia, was selected to design a Confederate Memorial, and went on to become one of the world’s most prominent sculptors. President Woodrow Wilson dedicated this Ezekiel Memorial in 1914. Moses Ezekiel, the only known Jewish Confederate in Arlington, is buried next to the memorial he designed. The Space Shuttle Columbia disintegrated upon re-entry into Earth’s atmosphere on February 2, 2003, killing all seven astronauts aboard. A monument commemorating the Columbia was dedicated the following year on February 2. The Star of David on the memorial represents Israeli Air Force Colonel Ilan Ramon, the first Israeli astronaut. Ramon was the son and grandson of Auschwitz survivors and veterans of the 1948 Israeli War of Independence. He brought symbolic Jewish items into space with him, including a mezuzah made of barbed wire and a mini Torah scroll from a Bergen-Belsen concentration camp, among others.

Dedicated on October 24, 2011 the Jewish Chaplains Memorial honors the fourteen Jewish Chaplains killed in the line duty. Instrumental to the erection of this monument was Kenneth Kraetzter, a member of the Sons of the American Legion, who visited Arlington and noticed monuments commemorating Catholic and Protestants Chaplains but nothing for Jewish Chaplains. Together with Sol Mogilev and Admiral Harold Robinson and spearheaded by the Jewish Chaplains Council of the Jewish Welfare Board and the Jewish Federation, a monument to the fallen Jewish Chaplains was finally dedicated. On the face of this memorial are the fourteen names of the Chaplains along with the insignia of Jewish Chaplains – the Ten Commandments topped by a Star of David and flanking the insignia are two rampart lions which evoke the blessing of Judah by the Patriarch Jacob. Together with Sol Mogilev and Admiral Harold Robinson and spearheaded by the Jewish Chaplains Council of the Jewish Welfare Board and the Jewish Federation, a monument to the fallen Jewish Chaplains was finally dedicated. On the face of this memorial are the fourteen names of the Chaplains along with the insignia of Jewish Chaplains – the Ten Commandments topped by a Star of David and flanking the insignia are two rampart lions which evoke the blessing of Judah by the Patriarch Jacob. Among the fourteen are three from WWII: Army Lt. Alexander D. Goode, Army 1st Lt. Louis Werfel and Army Capt. Irving Tepper; from the Vietnam War: Army Capt. Morton Harold Singer.

Our Jewish heritage is composed of many heroes, some are well-known and acknowledged while others remain ignored and their stories untold. These historic accounts about Arlington Cemetery and the resting places of these heroes should be heralded and disseminated. In future issues of the Veteran I hope to bring more stories to light.

HEARTS AND HANDS HELP THOSE IN NEED

NATIONAL LADIES AUXILIARY of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States

My year as your National President has been a wonderful experience. I have been so proud to serve as your President. There are many highlights of my year that stand out in my memory and I would like to share some with you.

At the Department of New Jersey, I was taken to the distribution center for their Pajama Program. The poetry program they have for young people is inspiring. I was also taken to the Viet Nam Educational Center. These two places were outstanding for their wonderful work, but in such different ways.

On Veterans’ weekend I attended part of the Warrior Weekend program at our National Museum of American Jewish Military History. It was so inspiring to see so many dedicated Cadets from around the country. The next day I visited Arlington National Cemetery where they celebrated the 100th Anniversary of the end of WWI.

My visit to the Department of Florida included a luncheon in my honor with seven Past National Presidents attending. I also toured the West Palm Beach VA Hospital and was most impressed with their gigantic automated laundry that does all the laundry for the Miami VA Hospital as well as their own.

My visit to the Department of New York included a most interesting meeting and delightful luncheon along with a tour of the local Ronald McDonald House on Sunday. The next day we went to the Brooklyn VA Medical Center for both Grant-a-Wish and Minnie Robinson presentation.

My visit to the Dallas, Texas Auxiliary was filled with interesting activities, new ideas and new people. The visits to the various U.S. Military Academies were most inspiring. I will give more details at the 2019 National Convention in Richmond, Virginia where I hope to meet most of you.

Until then, always remember that our goals are to help veterans, children and seniors have a better quality of life. Our hearts and hands help those in need.
Come Join Us In Richmond, Virginia!

91st Annual National Convention • August 18 - 23, 2019

Come one! Come All! Join us in Richmond, the capital of the Commonwealth of Virginia and soak up some of this beautiful city’s history, as well as its modern-day riches.

Today Richmond is an exciting city with a vast variety of attractions and activities for visitors. Take a leisurely stroll along the Canal Walk along the James River to view the historic statues. Enjoy some of its delicious cuisine in one of the many interesting restaurants.

Visit the home of Edgar Allan Poe or the National Historic Landmark District of Monument Avenue. Nature lovers should take a trip to the Lewis Ginter Botanical Garden on the North side of Richmond. Visit the Virginia Holocaust Museum, founded to educate the community about the Holocaust.

The Omni Richmond Hotel is a perfect place to stay while you experience Richmond. It is centrally located with easy access to area attractions.

There are numerous local restaurants with a variety of cuisines, sure to offer something to every taste.

We look forward to getting together once again to find ways of increasing our membership, exchanging ideas on how to keep our National Ladies Auxiliary active on behalf of our veterans, current military, children and seniors.

Let’s do it again! Our Pounds Auction at the last convention was surely something to talk about! Everyone had such a great time, we are going to do it again. Please bring a pound of anything, and put it in a brown lunch bag. If you don’t have a brown bag, we’ll have extras.

Start looking now! Examples are candy, erasers, popcorn, etc.. Use your imagination. As long as it weighs a pound. You won’t know what you are bidding on. Follow the clues of the Auctioneer.

See Joanne Blum or call her at 860-869-2982, and give her your item for the Auction.

Admission is $2 • Snacks will be served It will be an evening of fun and laughter!

Rita Panitz Memorial Teddy Bear Program

Bears here, bears there, big ones, small ones! Bears bring big smiles and happy faces!

Think of all the smiles on the faces of the children as they cuddle one of the bears you have donated. Now is the time to start collecting bears. Every bear can be a friend to a child in need. Let’s make it our number one priority to bring happiness to the children who are our future.

On Monday, August 19th we have made arrangements to donate the bears to the Fire Department, Police Department, Children’s Hospital, and the Ronald McDonald House.

Think of the thanks we will receive when the residents in the Richmond area notice the label attached to each bear that reads, “National Ladies Auxiliary, Jewish War Veterans.”

Let’s aim high! Bring or mail your bears to convention. We hope that each Auxiliary will send one, that every sister will bring one. Please ask your Posts to help with this wonderful program.

If you would like to make a donation for the Bear Program, send your check to Elaine Bernstein, PNP, 9 Dogwood Court, Sayreville, NJ 08872.

Let’s make this the BEST Bear Convention ever!

Partners Club

Please join us at the Convention on Monday, August 19th at 5:00 pm for a wine & cheese get-together.

The purpose of this program is to help our administration function. The funds collected help keep our Washington office operating. Remember, anyone can be a partner member. If you know people who would like to support our cause, please ask them to join.

The cost is $50.00 to join, and $25.00 to renew every year after the first year. I hope all the members who originally joined will renew and continue to help our National Ladies Auxiliary.

Please make your checks payable to JWVA and send to the office and earmark Partners.

Come Join Us In Richmond, Virginia!

Rhea Sah! Memorial Baby Shower For Pregnant Military Women

We’re holding a baby shower for our pregnant military women during our National Convention in Richmond, Virginia on Monday, August 19. It is one way that we can say “Thank You” to these women for serving our country.

We would like to fill baskets for each pregnant mom-to-be with items needed for a new born, such as: diapers, bath towels, wash cloths, bibs, onesies, bottles, baby lotion, pacifiers, burp cloths, crib sheets, receiving blankets, night clothes, etc. Each basket averages at least $100.00 and we plan on presenting 12. If you would like to purchase these items yourself you may do so.

If you would like to make a donation for the baby shower, send your check to PNP Elaine Bernstein to purchase any items for the Rhea Sah Memorial Baby Shower Program. Make your checks payable to: Elaine Bernstein, PNP, 9 Dogwood Court, Sayreville, NJ 08872.

You can send your items and donations for the Baby Shower and/or the Teddy Bear Program directly to the hotel, between August 13 and August 15. Address packages to: Omni Richmond Hotel, 100 S 12th St, Richmond, VA 23219. Attention: Elaine Bernstein, PNP, Convention Chairman JWVA.
We continue to bring speakers and programs to the Museum on weeknights or weekends. In addition to the chance to have excellent programs, it also allows visitors to see the Museum who can’t make it to here during our regular hours. The spring months had several well attended programs.

On May 14th, Roy Eichhorn joined us for a talk on the Ghost Army. The WWII group of over 1,000 soldiers ran deceptive practices for the Army in Europe. Eichhorn shared the remarkable stories of how these men fooled the German with inflatable tanks and airplanes, audio tricks and false radio transmissions, camouflage and special effects and even the occasional job pretending a few drinks had loosened lips enough to leak out some strategic false information in a local bar. At war’s end, a lesser known responsibility of the Ghost Army was taking care of Holocaust survivors and others in displaced persons camps where language skills played an important role.

For decades, the work of the Ghost Army was classified. As a result, it’s only been in recent years that these soldiers have begun receiving credit for their work. The Ghost Army Legacy Foundation is now working to achieve larger recognition. A documentary film was produced for PBS in 2015. Today, the foundation is campaigning to award larger recognition. It was World War II that recast American women as foot soldiers on the home front and Jewish women were no exception. They worked both in the war industry and as WACs, WAVEs, nurses in the armed forces. Of course, the tradition continues, and it was nice to have young women currently in service in the audience.

On June 12th, we welcomed historian Pamela Nadell to the museum for a talk on her new book America’s Jewish Women: A History from Colonial Times to Today. Rather than give her standard book talk, Nadell focused on Jewish women in wartime and in the military to provide a talk unique to our Museum. The wartime stories were connected to the book’s larger theme off showing how Jewish women maintained a specific Jewish identity while contributing to virtually every aspect of American history.

She shared fascinating stories of women who were there for the Revolutionary cause like Grace Nathan. We often discuss Union officer Colonel Marcus Spiegel as a key Jewish figure in the Civil War. Nadell discussed his wife Caroline and her role as a military wife separated from her husband for years. The Civil War also brought Confederate women aiding the cause of their section. Eugenia Phillips Levy was arrested twice as a spy. At the same time, her sister Phoebe Yates Levy Pember was matron at Chimborazo Hospital in Richmond. It was World War II that recast American women as foot soldiers on the home front and Jewish women were no exception. Erasing the Hate
Tuesday, August 6th
TM Garret was once a part of the White Supremacist movement. Now, he’s a civil rights activist. Garret will join us to discuss his journey from hate to compassion and how to combat extremism in today’s environment.

Secretary of Veterans Affairs Robert Wilkie tours the museum on June 14th. Wilkie is the first sitting VA secretary to visit the museum.
While we have a big name, the National Museum of American Jewish Military History has a very small staff and limited resources. The Museum has a fantastic collection covering Jewish service in the American military from the Revolutionary War to the present and caring for all that history is a big task. We are fortunate to occasionally receive help from the museum community, and recently the NMAJMH hosted a large group of volunteers from around the DC area for an Angels Project.

Angels Projects pair conservators with collections that need care, be it general care or a special project. A group of conservators typically volunteer a day of their time to work with a site’s staff to provide basic care and rehousing for specific collections. We are very grateful to the Washington Conservation Guild for choosing the NMAJMH as the site for their 2019 Angels Project. The help that their volunteers provided was invaluable and very much appreciated.

Washington Conservative Guild Angels visit the Museum

On April 14th, volunteers led by the Washington Conservation Guild (WCG) gathered at the National Museum of American Jewish Military History for a day of collaborative work (and fun) in collections storage. WCG volunteer leaders worked with Pamela Elbe, the museum’s collections, archives and exhibitions coordinator, to identify areas with preservation needs and tasks that could be completed within the scope of an outreach grant. WCG is a nonprofit organization of art conservation professionals dedicated to preserving art and historic materials in the DC area. Through the generous support of the Foundation for Advancement in Conservation, WCG was awarded a Regional Angels Grant to complete basic collections care, conservation consultation, and simple preventive conservation activities such as re-housing collections at a site with minimal conservation facilities.

With Pam’s guidance, the WCG Angels Project focused on military uniform storage, historic newsletters, and recent acquisitions. Conservators from all experience levels and specialties, along with other museum professionals and collections enthusiasts, worked together across five different stations. One group made padded hangers to support garments hanging on racks, while another group used tissue paper to pad out uniforms stored flat in drawers. These measures help support the textile garments and accessories and prevent creasing and distortion over time. Another very handy group constructed two large Tyvek covers to protect uniforms hanging on open racks from dust and debris. Downstairs, another group worked to rehouse The Jewish War Veteran newspapers from the 1950s. These unique editions, which have not yet been digitized, are now better housed for storage and safe handling. After completing that job, volunteers moved on to help process recent acquisitions by recording the contents of scrapbooks and other photographs and document collections.

Many of the materials rehoused are of particular historical value to the institution. For example, several of the uniforms and associated artifacts in storage belonged to Sgt. William Shemin, who served in World War I and was known to have repeatedly risked his life to save wounded comrades. He also became the leader of his platoon in France when his senior commanders lost their lives. According to his daughter, his heroism was not recognized during his time of service because of his religion, and new legislation allowed the case to be reviewed. Shemin posthumously received the Medal of Honor, the military’s highest award for valor, in 2015 from President Obama. The preservation of artifacts such as these in NMAJMH’s collection is crucial to the long-term ability of the museum to continue to exhibit these important objects and share the stories of their significance with visitors.

Thank you to the Foundation for Advancement in Conservation for their generous support of this project, as well as University Products for their assistance with supplies. For more information about conservation, please visit WashingtonConservationGuild.org and CulturalHeritage.org.

Burial and Memorial Service held for Homeless Veteran

By Ben Kane

On August 19th, a Jewish war veteran named Neil Schaffer passed away in a Los Angeles hotel room. He had no known family, only a few friends, no job, and no home to call his own. In March of this year, the JWV was made aware of his passing, and sought to recognize him in a manner that befit a member of the tribe. JWV-CA Chaplain Dov Cohen and Department Commander Greg Lee led the efforts to memorialize Mr. Schaffer.

Chaplain Dov Cohen is the National Cemetery Foundation President, as well as the JWV National Chairman of the “End Homelessness Now” program. He helped put together several memorial programs in Mr. Schaffer’s memory—one at the Los Angeles City Hall, one at the Los Angeles National Cemetery, and ensured that he was honored at the Annual Gala at the Reagan Presidential Library. Mr. Schaffer’s memorial service at the National Cemetery was the first to be conducted in the remodeled Bob Hope Chapel and served as the start of a new program with the goal of memorializing deceased homeless veterans. The National Cemetery is currently working to provide military funerals to deceased veterans providing buglers, flag folding ceremonies, and all the other crucial parts of the military funeral before laying them to rest in a recently constructed columbarium.

The JWV department of California is very active in the fight against veteran homelessness. Posts in the area are working for the sake of veterans with groups like the American Legion, Vietnam Veterans of America, VFW, and more. From job and benefits assistance to working behind the scenes on pro-veteran legislation, these partnerships help ensure that veterans of all faiths have a higher chance of getting the recognition, respect, and assistance they deserve. The JWV is honored to do its part in serving the American Jewish veteran community, throughout their years of service and afterwards.

Did you know?

• At no charge, an eligible veteran is entitled to Military Funeral Honors which includes the folding and presenting of the American flag to the next of kin and the playing of Taps. Generally, the family tells the funeral director who will put in this request.

• If you meet eligibility requirements, you can be buried or inurned in a VA National Cemetery. The VA will furnish the headstone and grave liner and the cemetery is maintained at no cost to the family. However, you may not reserve a space in the cemetery ahead of time, there is no guarantee that a family member will be in-terred nearby, and ceremonies are not conducted on weekends.

• A Presidential Memorial Certificate (PMC) is an engraved paper certificate, signed by the current President, to honor the memory of honorably discharged deceased Veterans. The Certificate is provided to your family upon request from your local VA office.
